It is highly probable that the Flick Amendment has been adopted, thus making rebels and rebel sympathizers equal with the nigger before the law and at the mallot box. Well, we suppose we ought editorial with this remarks

O that mine enemy would write book," cried critic Solomon, referring to some dignitary between whom and him-self a coldness existed. How sayagely he would have reviewed it may be inferred from the repressed intensity of the remark. The New York World is not Solomon,

If the editor of the Commercial would read a book called the Bible, he would find this aspiration was uttered by a certain old gentleman of the name of Jon. But the quotation is not literal. What Jon said was this: " Behold my desire is that the Almoury would answer me, book" If SOLOMON said what is attributed to him by our learned cotemporary, it was doubtless a plagairism; but in the considerable interest to your readers, especially in this city. I propose to give a short statement of the case, coming from the side of the contestants of the will. the side of the contestants of the wind-In the fall of 1823, Daniel Steenrod, then about 79 years of age, made the will under consideration, the notes for which were written by Judge Thompson, his son-in-law. On the 9th of November 1863, he made his first codicil; on the 25th of January, 1863 he made another codicil, written by Judge Thompson; on the 27th

I was claimed that he was evidently influenced to execute these papers which he did not understand, and that he had no conception that he had executed any "H" is such papers.

It was claimed that if this will and codicils should be established, that such a will would be unde for him as he never intended to make, had no knowledge or memory of making, and actually died in total ignorance that he had ever done any uch act. In the Fall of 1866, the case was tried by a jury of this county. The counsel for the will were Judge Kennon, of Ohio, and Judge Lee, of this State, the very first talent of the country.

The jury returned a verdict that these

The court granted his motion, and removed the case to Brooke county, against the strong remonstrance of the contest-ants, who desired it to be sent to Mar-shall, which was the most convenient county in the circuit.

The case was tried last week in Brooke, as first mentioned, seem to take it for-granted that the last verdict settles the case. So it will, it allowed to stand. The first verdict did not stand, and this may be set uside, and a new trial may be
